Dear Albert:

I have been asked to help prepare a new edition of the Academy of Pediatrics publication "Report of the Committee on Immunization and Therapeutic Procedures for Acute Infectious Diseases," commonly known as the red book. It is apparently used extensively by pediatricians as a guide in their immunization procedures and management of patients with acute infectious diseases.

Enclosed is a copy of the section on "Poliomyelitis" in the 1952 report which is to be revised. I shall be very grateful if you will write in any corrections or changes that you think are indicated and return the copy to me before December 1st.

Yours sincerely,

Edward C. Curnen, M.D.
Professor of Pediatrics
