Dear Dr. Sabin:

I have read your manuscript and have obtained outside reviews. It is with real regret that we must turn down your contribution. The chief objection is that the information and point of view are not new or unique and are probably well known to the clientele of Science. Further, this information and point of view are not put in any particularly new or interesting way. I am sure that it made a good speech. However, as an article it does not come off very well.

Sincerely,

Philip H. Abelson
